Bones is a typical young, high energy Husky boy. Prior to SHRF he was in a shelter where he was very nervous and uneasy, but very friendly with the staff from whom he would seek attention at any opportunity.

He is quite the talker when looking for attention or when he wants something, including visiting with other dogs, and he makes sure you know it. In his foster home Bones has shown to have an outgoing personality. He is not shy or scared of anything. He gets along well with other dogs.

Bones is possessive of his food bowl so we recommend caution when food is around and once he's finished eating (which doesn't take long) pick up his bowl and put it away. It helps to feed him separately from any other dogs in the house. This is something his new owner will need to continue to work on with him until he learns no one is going to steal his food. The humans need to establish themselves as the alphas of the home.

Bones will settle down and relax when you pet him, especially belly rubs. He has made progress in his foster home and will now bring his food bowl to them when he is hungry. He will also sit and wait for a treat, taking it gently from your hand. Bones walks well on lead.

Bones is healthy, Heartworm negative, housebroken, neutered, up-to-date on vaccines, and microchipped. This boy is still young enough for a willing adopter to turn into an affectionate, lifelong companion; make him yours and fill out an adoption application on our website, www.siberrescue.com, today.
